ICEWEB RECEIVES ORDER FROM THERMOPYLAE SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY (TST)

TST's iSpatial Visualization Platform to Utilize IceWEB's Unified Storage System

STERLING, Va. – (MARKET WIRE) – April 6, 2011 – IceWEB, Inc. (OTCBB:IWEB), www.icweb.com, a leading provider of Unified Data Storage and building blocks for cloud storage networks, has received an initial order from TST for an IceWEB Model 3000 HC Unified Storage Platform.

The IceWEB system is being used by TST in their iSpatial Geospatial 3-D Visualization and Tracking Platform which is closely coupled with the Google™ Earth Enterprise product. iSpatial is TST's powerful software framework that enables visualization of limitless information, intelligence fusion, and operations management in a geospatially-aware environment. The IceWEB Model 3000 HC, like all IceWEB Storage Platforms, supports both structured or unstructured, file and block data, making it ideal for geospatial applications.

“Earlier this month, TST announced they were incorporating IceWEB storage systems into their geospatial product line and placed IceWEB's Unified Storage Platforms onto their GSA contract, GS -35F-0084V, Schedule 70,” said Tim McNamee, IceWEB's Director of Federal Channels. “This is all part of our collaborative effort to increase government sales by making our products more visible to government buyers and by simplifying the procurement process.”
